CHARLESTON DIVISION

TERRESKI MULLINS, et al.,

Plaintiffs,

CIVIL ACTION NO. 2:12-cv-02952

ETHICON, INC., et al.,

v.

Defendants.

MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER

(Defendants' Motion for Partial Summary Judgment re: Carol Whisner, et al., No. 2:14-cv-13023)

Pending before the court is the defendants' Motion for Partial Summary Judgment [ECF No. 1112]. As set forth below, the defendants' Motion is GRANTED in part and DENIED in part.

I. Background

This case represents the consolidation of twenty-six out of nearly 28,000 cases filed against Ethicon, Inc. and Johnson & Johnson, Inc. (collectively "Ethicon"). The Ethicon MDL is one of seven MDLs assigned to me related to pelvic mesh, collectively encompassing over 60,000 cases. This action involves twenty-six West Virginia plaintiffs who were implanted with Tension-free Vaginal Tape ("TVT"), a mesh product manufactured by Ethicon to treat stress urinary incontinence ("SUI"). These cases have been consolidated on all claims. See Pretrial Order No. 184 [ECF No. 25] ("PTO"); Fourth Am. Docket Control Order [ECF No. 258]; Order, Dec. 27, 2016, at 2 [ECF No. 1527] ("The trial will address all triable issues in each case.").

II. Legal Standards

A. Summary Judgment

To obtain summary judgment, the moving party must show that there is no genuine dispute as to any material fact and that the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(a). In considering a motion for summary judgment, the court will not "weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter." Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 249 (1986). Instead, the court will draw any permissible inference from the underlying facts in the light most favorable to the nonmoving party. Matsushita Elec. Indus. Co. v. Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 587–88 (1986).

Although the court will view all underlying facts and inferences in the light most favorable to the nonmoving party, the nonmoving party nonetheless must offer some "concrete evidence from which a reasonable juror could return a verdict" in his or her favor. Anderson, 477 U.S. at 256. Summary judgment is appropriate when the nonmoving party has the burden of proof on an essential element of his or her case and does not make, after adequate time for discovery, a showing sufficient to establish that element. Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 322–23 (1986). The nonmoving party must satisfy this burden of proof by offering more than a mere "scintilla of evidence" in support of his or her position. Anderson, 477 U.S. at 252. Likewise, conclusory allegations or unsupported speculation, without more, are insufficient to preclude the granting of a summary judgment motion. See Dash v. Mayweather, 731 F.3d 303, 311 (4th Cir. 2013); Stone v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 105 F.3d 188, 191 (4th Cir. 1997).

B. Choice of Law

"[B]ecause the plaintiffs are West Virginia residents and had their surgeries at hospitals in West Virginia, the cases solely implicate West Virginia law." Pretrial Order No. 184 at 4 (citing McKinney v. Fairchild Intern., Inc., 487 S.E.2d 913, 922 (W. Va. 1997) ("Traditionally, West Virginia courts apply the lex loci delicti choice-of-law rule; that is, the substantive rights between the parties are determined by the law of the place of injury.")). Accordingly, West Virginia law governs the plaintiffs' case.

III. Analysis

Ethicon argues it is entitled to summary judgment because the plaintiffs' legal theories are without evidentiary or legal support.

A. Conceded Claims

The plaintiffs concede the following claims: negligent infliction of emotional distress, violation of consumer protection laws, strict liability—defective product, and discovery rule and tolling. Pls.' Resp. 1–2 [ECF No. 1342]. Accordingly, Ethicon's Motion regarding those claims is GRANTED.

B. Failure to Warn

The evidence shows that Ms. Whisner's implanting physician did not rely on the TVT's Instructions for Use and that any other warning would not have altered his decision to perform the surgery on her. See generally Dr. Sze Dep., May 13, 2016 [ECF No. 1112-15]; Dr. Sze Dep., June 26, 2016 [ECF No. 1112-2]. Based on the evidence, the operation of the learned intermediary doctrine stymies the plaintiffs' failure to warn claims against Ethicon. See Tyree v. Bos. Sci. Corp., 56 F. Supp. 3d 826, 833 (S.D. W. Va. 2014) (predicting that the West Virginia Supreme Court would apply the learned intermediary doctrine in the medical device context). Accordingly, Ethicon's Motion on this point is GRANTED.

C. Manufacturing Defect

The plaintiffs point to no evidence that the TVT device departed from its intended design at the time it left Ethicon's control. Accordingly, Ethicon's Motion on this point is GRANTED.

D. Fraud-based Claims and Negligent Misrepresentation

The plaintiffs' fraud-based claims and negligent misrepresentation claim are simply repackaged failure-to-warn claims. But the plaintiffs have not identified any particular statements by Ethicon upon which they relied. This inability to identify any particular fraudulent statements upon which they relied indicates that the gravamen of these claims is Ethicon's failure to warn the plaintiffs about particular risks or dangers associated with the TVT. If the learned intermediary doctrine "could be avoided by casting what is essentially a failure to warn claim under a different cause of action . . . then the doctrine would be rendered meaningless." In re Norplant

Contraceptive Prods. Liab. Litig., 955 F. Supp. 700, 709 (E.D. Tex. 1997). Accordingly, I predict with confidence that, if confronted with this issue, the West Virginia Supreme Court would hold that the learned intermediary doctrine applies to all claims based on a medical device manufacturer's failure to warn, including fraud, fraudulent concealment, constructive fraud, and negligent misrepresentation. Accordingly, Ethicon's Motion regarding the plaintiffs' fraud-based claims and negligent misrepresentation claim is GRANTED.

E. Breach of Express Warranty

The plaintiffs cannot establish that Ethicon made any express warranty, as defined by W. Va. Code § 46-2-313(1), because they has not even identified any statement made by Ethicon to them concerning the TVT. Accordingly, Ethicon's Motion on this point is GRANTED.

F. Breach of Implied Warranty (Fitness for a Particular Purpose)

The plaintiffs have not presented any evidence that Ms. Whisner's physician selected her TVT device for anything other than its intended purpose, which is the treatment of SUI. See W. Va. Code. § 46-2-315; see also Keffer v. Wyeth, 791 F. Supp. 2d 539, 547 (S.D. W. Va. 2011) (Copenhaver, J.) (noting that W. Va. Code § 46-2-315 "requires a particular purpose that differs from the ordinary purpose for which the goods are generally used"). Accordingly, Ethicon's Motion on this point is GRANTED.

G. Unjust Enrichment

The plaintiffs have not identified any evidence to support their unjust enrichment claim. Accordingly, Ethicon's Motion on this point is GRANTED.

H. All Remaining Claims

The court FINDS that genuine disputes of material fact exist regarding the plaintiffs' remaining claims challenged by Ethicon. Accordingly, Ethicon's Motion as to all remaining claims is DENIED.

IV. Conclusion

For the reasons discussed above, it is ORDERED that Ethicon's Motion for

Partial Summary Judgment [ECF No. 1112] is GRANTED in part and DENIED in part. Ethicon's Motion is GRANTED with regard to the following claims:

manufacturing defect, fraud, fraudulent concealment, constructive fraud, negligent misrepresentation, negligent infliction of emotional distress, breach of express warranty, breach of implied warranty for fitness for a particular purpose, violation of consumer protection laws, unjust enrichment, strict-liability—defective product, discovery rule and tolling, and failure to warn. Ethicon's Motion is DENIED in all other respects.

The Court DIRECTS the Clerk to send a copy of this Order to counsel of record and any unrepresented party.
